Commissioners Explain Use Of Fuels Money

The Warren County Board of Commissioners will be accompanied by commissioners from McKean and Forest counties when they fly to the State County Commissioners' Convention to be held Aug. 28 through Sept. 1 in Philadelphia at the Penn Franklin Hotel. Highlight of the convention will be a speech by Governor David Lawrence on Wednesday evening.

Thursday the Commissioners voted unanimously to transfer $50 of the salary received by County Child Welfare Director, Mrs. Lenor C. Jordan, from the Institution Fund to the County Fund. Mrs. Jordan has been receiving a salary of $250 per month, $200 of which has come from the County fund and $50 from the Institution fund. Since the Family Service and Children's Aid Society has assumed some of the County's cases, it was voted that Mrs. Jordan should receive all her salary from the County fund.

The Commissioners would also like to clarify a point concerning the investment of the Liquid Fuels money. It was explained that each county receives money from the state from the Liquid Fuels taxes, and that this money is distributed proportionately to the townships and boroughs on a basis of fifty per cent mileage and fifty per cent population for road improvements and related problems.

To receive this money for improvements the townships must first have the projects completed and receive state approval of the work. After the state engineer has approved the job, the Commissioners are then instructed to reimburse the townships, according to their specified allotments. This process sometimes may take from three to six months.

Rather than have the Liquid Fuels Fund money lie dormant in the local banks, the Commissioners have recently been investing the money in short-term government securities. Since the Board has taken this action, $2526 has been added to the fund in interest payments. This money will also be available to the townships for road improvements.

The Commissioners further pointed out that they are held responsible for the damages incurred when the state repairs or replaces roads in the county. The property damages are paid from the Liquid Fuels money also, which may result in a lower allocation for each of the townships and boroughs in the county.

One Killed, Two Injured In Struthers Explosion

A Tidioute man, Harry Wiles, is in the Titusville hospital with bruises and burns received Thursday afternoon when a boiler exploded in the Titusville Struthers Wells Plant. One employee was killed and a third injured in the accident.

The accident occurred about 4:30 when the men were checking the boiler. Pressure was reported to have gone up to 7500 pounds when the explosion let go.

The dead man is Lawrence Baron, twenty-nine, of Titusville.

The condition of Mr. Wiles is not believed to be serious. X-rays will be taken today to determine the extent of his injuries.

LESTER KIEFT, Ph.D.

The annual meeting of the Warren County Branch, Pennsylvania State Education Association, will be highlighted by the appearance of Lester Kieft, Ph.D., chairman of the Department of Chemistry at Bucknell University. Dr. Kieft will present two lectures at the August 29 session at the Eisenhower high school.

He will give a lecture-demonstration, "Atomic Energy and You", at the 11 a.m. session, and at 1:30 p.m. will address the audience on the subject, "The Teacher's Place in Our Scientific World". A second speaker in the afternoon will be Dr. Kenneth D. Frantz, past president, Northwest Section, PSEA. He will be followed by a question and discussion period.

The day's program starts at 8:30 a.m. with local meetings with administrators and principals prior to adjournment to Eisenhower school.

Thomas K. Barratt of Sheffield, is chairman of the county association.

More Library Service For County Patrons

Patrons of the Warren Public Library and the Warren Co. Bookmobile will notice an important change in library service when a new book charging system, the most advanced system available, will go into effect on the first of next month.

Last year the Warren Public Library alone checked out more than 123,000 books, and it is anticipated that, with the bookmobile serving Warren County residents, the figure will be increased considerably during the coming year. With the present charging system, each book was handled about five times by the staff in checking out procedure.

The library staff members feel that their real job is to assist patrons in locating the material they need and then, as an incidental procedure, to check it out. For this reason it was decided to install the new, more efficient system, which will eliminate at least five steps in the checking out and checking in of books.

Similar to the charge plate system used in many stores, with the new plan each patron will carry his borrower's card with him. This card must be presented each time he wishes to take out a book.

The new borrowers' cards are now being prepared and, beginning Sept. 1, they will be issued to each patron of the Warren Public Library as he visits the library.

Patrons who use the Warren County Bookmobile will find the new system in effect on the bookmobile when it starts its fall schedule on September 6. New borrowers' cards, which may be used either on the bookmobile or at the Warren Public Library, will be brought to bookmobile patrons when the vehicle visits their communities.

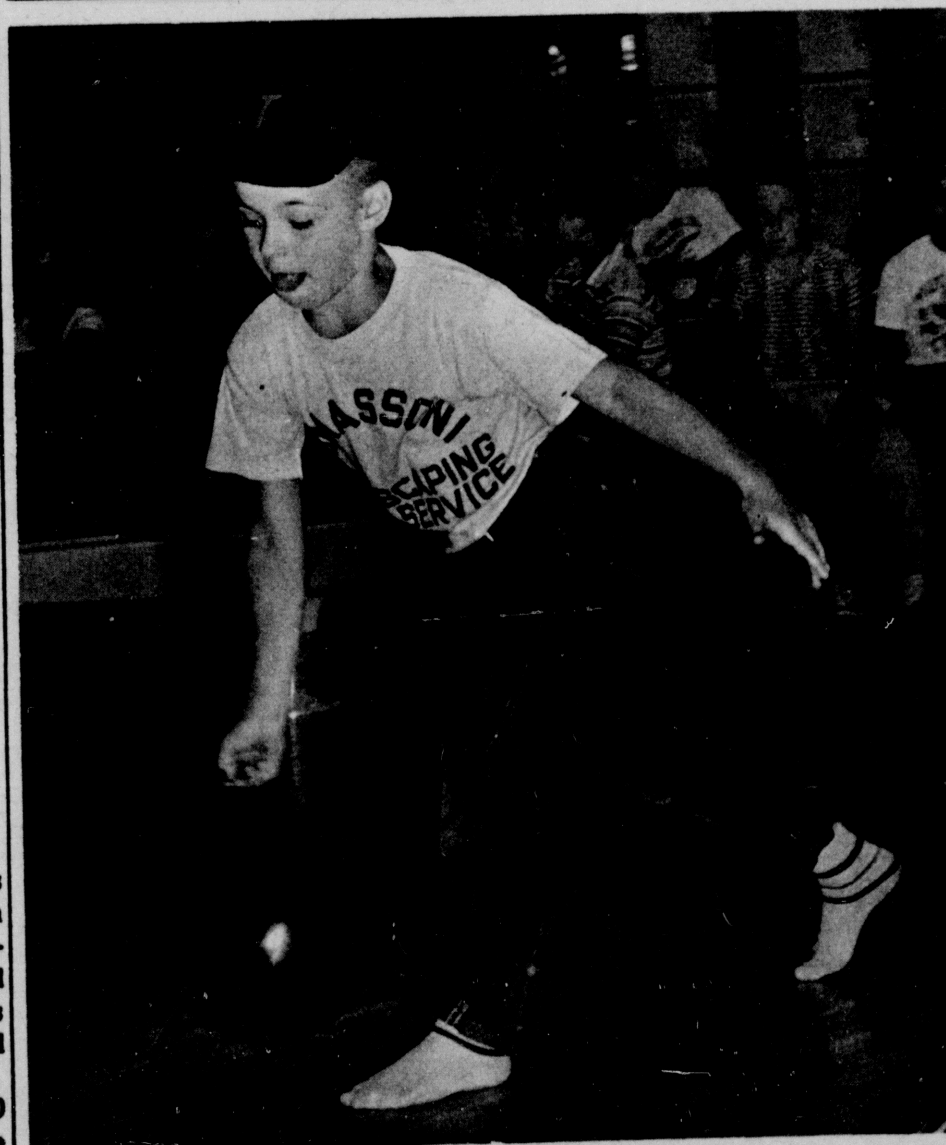

"I LIKE IKE", says ten-year-old Susie Ristau as she cuddles her pet raccoon at her home on Jackson Run rd. But she didn't mean President Eisenhower in this case. That's the little fellow's name.

Susie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ristau. The raccoon was a gift from George Johnson, also of Jackson Run rd., who found three of the babies after mama was killed by a passing car.

It is requested that any library patrons who have moved or whose address has been changed and who have not already notified the library, please do so immediately so that their new borrowers' cards will be correct when they receive them. This notification can be made by a telephone call or by stopping at the main desk of the Warren Public Library.

CHAMPIONSHIP BOWLING? With thoughts of the past Hot Stove League baseball season in the back of his mind, little Bobby Seaquist tests his skill on the maples at the newly redecorated Penn Bowling Center lanes. Stocking-footed Bobby was among a crowd of fifty or more youngsters who turned out for the free bowling session offered by Pete and Rose Juliano, proprietors of the Penn.

Pete thought he would just get a handful of youngsters for the free bowling periods, but you might say he had his hands full instead.

Today and Tomorrow . . . THE SENATE VOTES

By Walter Lippmann

In the voting on the medical care measures the Senate proved once more that ours is a Presidential system of government. It was the President in office who prevailed as against both Nixon and Kennedy, on of whom will be. Although there was a large majority in the Senate which thinks the President's program is inadequate, such is the power of the President that he was able to defeat this majority.

Mr. Lippmann

There were forty-four votes, all but one of them Democratic, for the Anderson amendment which had the backing of Kennedy. There were twenty-eight votes, all of them Republican, for the Javits-Nixon amendment which is much more liberal than the Eisenhower proposal. But the Senate was incapable of organizing a majority for a positive measure. Why? Because only the President can do that kind of thing.

By his power to threaten a veto the President is able to penalize, and for positive legislation to frustrate, a Congressional majority. On the other hand, the voting on Tuesday shows rather clearly that if Kennedy were in the White House he could easily enough have gotten a majority for his proposal. He needed to change only four votes out of the thirty-two Republicans and nineteen Southern Democrats who noted against him. Among these fifty-one Senators there must have been at least four, probably quite a few more, who agree with Sen. Kennedy and Gov. Rockefeller that the right principle is to base medical care for the aged on the social security system. It was the threat of the President's veto and the threat of the President's displeasure which kept the necessary four votes away from Kennedy.

The result proved that Kennedy will be quite justified in arguing that there is no prospect of a comprehensive medical care bill unless he is elected. For while the Nixon-Javits proposal has some merit, it would be enormously complicated to administer and almost certainly more costly to the general taxpayer than the Kennedy-Anderson proposal. Nixon, if elected, would face the opposition of a large part of the powerful Democratic majority. On Tuesday they voted unanimously against him.

The net result is, it seems to me, that while Kennedy cannot say that he has a united Democratic party behind him, he can say that, if elected, he can, and that Nixon cannot, establish a comprehensive system of medical care for the aged.

In these test votes neither candidate was able to form a majority in favor of his own views. But on the question of who will be the more effective in leading Congress, Kennedy was shown to be much the stronger. He mustered forty-four votes and came within four votes of a majority for his proposal. Nixon mustered only twenty-eight votes and was twenty votes short of a majority.

The figures support the view, which many observers have already expressed, that Nixon if elected will have a very hard time dealing with Congress. The evils of divided government, which have been assuaged by Eisenhower's personal popularity and prestige, would almost surely be blatant under Nixon.

OBSERVATIONS

By Bob Walsh

Why We Have No Swimming Pool

We note that the Warren Times story has been booted around to the Mirror is running a questionnaire effect that there will not be a pool as a kind of swimming pool survey. If there is one step in this survey, it is that which deals with swimming pool whirl that already be constructed on the area we prefer. has been well covered on two occasions it is that which deals with subjects also is not the real reason we do not have a swimming pool in Warren. It is of no help by polls that went directly to the people and were not dependent on newspaper clippings.

It is useless to ask the public for professional opinions about pools. The average citizen is not an authority on the subject and will be the first to admit it. West Siders will vote for a West Side pool and East Siders for one in their area. That can be expected to serve as the measure of their opinion.

Not only have Warren citizens on at least two occasions indicated that they wanted a pool, but civic groups also have joined together in an expression of support for such a project and often have indicated their impatience with the lack of action.

A committee was appointed and in turn a site committee was named. This was an overlarge group that too often got off on tangents. We haven't heard an official report from this committee concerning a recommendation on sites, despite the fact that three good men with a mite of professional help could have wound the business up in a couple of months.

But that is not the real reason why there has been no action on the pool

Also involved in this pool problem is an overdose of prejudice. There are those who are very much opposed to anything which may be considered a brainchild of the Observer, or of anyone associated with the paper. Their hand shows plainly at frequent intervals. So ridiculous is their narrowness that one Another blockade that always arises when an effort requiring large sums of money concerns us is the unwillingness of the givers. There are some who do not feel they are obligated to help finance facilities which will serve the populace. Adversely, they also oppose the use of public funds for the same facilities.

And among those with the larger incomes there often is disagreement concerning which project should be approved, and it does not matter to some of them what the general public wants. They have their pet ideas and unless these are given priority they are reluctant to contribute.

But again this normal and human behaviour of the donors is not the current swimming pool stopper.

What is?

The real reason we do not have a swimming pool, or even an effort underway to provide one, is the lack of a finance chairman. Warren is well equipped with numerous capable men and women who are eager to help head up or serve on various committees. They will assume major responsibilities in the various categories of work to be done. But no one wants to be the drive chief, the general chairman who must coordinate all this pulling and tugging, bring the alleged factions together, sell each problem child on the value of the idea, and supervise the big push for funds.

We have good men and women who could very capably do this job, but either they already are too busy with civic responsibilities and business, or they choose not to place their neck in the line of fire.

It is that simple. We lack a leader who has the time, or one who having the time is willing to accept the task.

And there are others who are willing to do the job, but feel that if they were to attempt it, prejudice would be stirred and selfish opposition would defeat the promotion.

You can number among these the Observer staff. But you can be assured that the Observer personnel will support a swimming pool chairman who provided a practical plan with the help of professional authorities.

Many have been asked, but none has accepted. That is the reason there is no pool progress.

LOOK FOR SEWAGE VIOLATORS

Our picture of a sewer which was emptying into the Allegheny river near Warren apparently awakened many to the fact that previous editorials that attempted to expose such a condition were based on actuality. It is not news to Observer readers that a picture can say so much, so easily, and so succinctly.

We received telephone calls and visits from those who are vitally interested in the enforcement of the clean streams law. We suggest that the discovery of such violations is overdue, despite the ease with which it can be accomplished.

There are several approaches. One is to use a boat in this low water period of the year and scout the banks. A more thorough method is to don some boots and walk both banks.

But even better we believe would be a visit to every camp and home on the river to determine what sewage disposal method each is using. Law enforcement is like that. Routine, systematic, and perhaps unpleasant. But it must be done if the construction of sewage plants, costing millions of dollars, is not to be wasted.

We can go on publishing pictures of such sewers as we find them along the streams within the area served by this paper. But is it necessary? Would it not be just as easy for the proper authorities and officials to do the job and to enforce the law? Or, finish the sewage project?

INCENTIVE MAKES GOOD NEGRO STUDENTS

The Pennsylvania Fair Employment law has done much to improve the interest taken by negro students in their studies. Where they have been encouraged to ignore the negative attitude of their parents, whose lives were affected by discrimination their marks have climbed amazingly.

In Johnstown efforts were made to insure that there were jobs awaiting specially trained students. As a result the marks went zooming into the A and B categories.

For example, in 1956, the first year after the law went into effect, the number of negro students in Johnstown high school was twenty. Of these eleven had D marks, six had C, two had B and one had A. The next year there were twelve of them with C's, and five had earned B's.

By 1958 the A group numbered five and the B's had grown to six.

By this year the entire ratio had changed. Of thirty-six students, twenty-one had B marks or better.

YOUR OWN FREE PRESS

A group has been organized which thinks it has a way by which all of us can share our free press benefits with citizens of other nations where freedom is not fully realized. This is a part of our cold war with communism.

It is proposed that you send your extra magazines and newspapers to other countries, and addresses are given which you can use. Labels also are provided to facilitate shipping.

Name of the group is Magazines for Friendship Inc. It suggests you choose only the good magazines in order to provide a true picture of American life. Pulp or comic magazines are not recommended. And mutilated issues are not good messengers. Avoid magazines that give distorted pictures of our way of life.

This may be more of an order than most of us can fill, but we see little harm in a typical cross-section of American publications. You can obtain details from Magazines for Friendship Inc., Occidental College, Los Angeles 41, California. Or send your magazines there and they will take care of delivery.

VETERANS SCHOOL ENDS

The ravages of war that far exceed our mental picture can be found in the announcement that a training program for disabled war veterans was terminated on July 25. During its seventeen years the rehabilitation act helped two-thirds of a million disabled veterans to gain financial independence doubling their average pay and providing them with a lift that is not measurable.

Thirty-five per cent of them aimed for professional or managerial occupations, and thirty-eight per cent trained for skilled trade and industrial occupations.

Ninety-five per cent were employed and ninety-nine per cent said they liked their chosen work.

Goldwater Cuts Scabs The Writers

By Inez Robb

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater (R., Ariz.) is a nice gentleman who unfortunately was born a hundred years too late. He is the beau ideal of those who are convinced that only a Goldwater-Byrd (Sen. Harry F., D., Va.) can save the nation from the total rack and ruin of the 20th Century.

Some wit, I wish I knew his name, once said that the DAR meets annually to repeal the 20th Century. I think the girls might get a little extra mileage from their program if they made the Arizona Senator an honorary member.

However, what alarms me about Senator Goldwater is not his political philosophy -- live and let fly, is my motto -- but what he is doing to the professional political columnists in my bailiwick.

The Senator recently entered the pundit field with a column entitled, "Where Do You Stand, Sir?" Apparently Senator Goldwater has peered into the past so intently he is unaware that women also stand, read and have even got the vote.

Now when I attended the Republican national convention in Chicago, I had a brief encounter with the Senator. He is a pleasant man with rather thin, sharp features, topped by a high forehead and iron-gray hair.

After a press conference, in which he found the Rockefeller family no whit better than the Kennedy clan and thus dismissed the former from the Grand Old Party, I went up to speak with him. I wanted to know, as one columnist to another, how he likes his new sideline.

"I write three a week," he said and added, "Say, it's a helluva job!"

That was scarcely stop-press news to me. So I went on to the next topic and asked the Senator how many papers carry his column.

"Forty-seven," he said with understandable pride. "The money I make out of them I donate to the Community Hospital in Prescott, Ariz."

"Since you mention money, Senator," I said, "how much do you make out of the column per week?"

"One hundred and twenty-five dollars," he replied, after consulting an aide.

"Senator!" I cried in alarm. "You wuz robbed! Are you trying to ruin the business for the rest of us?"

Why, that column is a giveaway, a dead giveaway, I said indignantly to myself when I regained consciousness. Less than $2.65 per paper per week! Why, it's insane, it's treason, it's scabbing! It's back to 1860!

Oh, it's dandy for Senator Goldwater personally to give away a column, if he wants to, since he is a merchant prince with diversified holdings in Arizona. But what about the professions who don't have a department store to back them up, and who devote a lifetime to gaining a livelihood and recognition in the newspaper business?

Only a few days ago, Senator Goldwater was complaining vociferously that labor legislation advocated by the Democratic party was nothing more or less than payola for the labor unions. Now I wonder what kind of payola Senator Goldwater thinks his column constitutes when it is to all intents and purposes a throw-away sheet for papers that run it?

If the Senator from Arizona believes his column can stand the test of the market place, a philosophy he is always preaching, let him fairly price it to compete with such professionals as Roscoe Drummond, James Reston, Doris Fleeson, Esther Tuft, Walter Lippmann, et al, or I'll be glad to help them picket.

Today and Tomorrow . . . THE SENATE VOTES

By Walter Lippmann

In the voting on the medical care measures the Senate proved once more that ours is a Presidential system of government. It was the President in office who prevailed as against both Nixon and Kennedy, on of whom will be. Although there was a large majority in the Senate which thinks the President's program is inadequate, such is the power of the President that he was able to defeat this majority.

Mr. Lippmann

There were forty-four votes, all but one of them Democratic, for the Anderson amendment which had the backing of Kennedy. There were twenty-eight votes, all of them Republican, for the Javits-Nixon amendment which is much more liberal than the Eisenhower proposal. But the Senate was incapable of organizing a majority for a positive measure. Why? Because only the President can do that kind of thing.

By his power to threaten a veto the President is able to penalize, and for positive legislation to frustrate, a Congressional majority. On the other hand, the voting on Tuesday shows rather clearly that if Kennedy were in the White House he could easily enough have gotten a majority for his proposal. He needed to change only four votes out of the thirty-two Republicans and nineteen Southern Democrats who noted against him. Among these fifty-one Senators there must have been at least four, probably quite a few more, who agree with Sen. Kennedy and Gov. Rockefeller that the right principle is to base medical care for the aged on the social security system. It was the threat of the President's veto and the threat of the President's displeasure which kept the necessary four votes away from Kennedy.

The result proved that Kennedy will be quite justified in arguing that there is no prospect of a comprehensive medical care bill unless he is elected. For while the Nixon-Javits proposal has some merit, it would be enormously complicated to administer and almost certainly more costly to the general taxpayer than the Kennedy-Anderson proposal. Nixon, if elected, would face the opposition of a large part of the powerful Democratic majority. On Tuesday they voted unanimously against him.

The net result is, it seems to me, that while Kennedy cannot say that he has a united Democratic party behind him, he can say that, if elected, he can, and that Nixon cannot, establish a comprehensive system of medical care for the aged.

In these test votes neither candidate was able to form a majority in favor of his own views. But on the question of who will be the more effective in leading Congress, Kennedy was shown to be much the stronger. He mustered forty-four votes and came within four votes of a majority for his proposal. Nixon mustered only twenty-eight votes and was twenty votes short of a majority.

The figures support the view, which many observers have already expressed, that Nixon if elected will have a very hard time dealing with Congress. The evils of divided government, which have been assuaged by Eisenhower's personal popularity and prestige, would almost surely be blatant under Nixon.

OBSERVATIONS

By Bob Walsh

Why We Have No Swimming Pool

We note that the Warren Times story has been booted around to the Mirror is running a questionnaire effect that there will not be a pool as a kind of swimming pool survey. If there is one step in this survey, we are satisfied that it is going to be constructed on the area we prefer. But this limited approach to civic subjects also is not the real reason we do not have a swimming pool in Warren. It is of no help and certainly complicates coordinated action of an objective nature, but it is not the main hurdle.

It is useless to ask the public for professional opinions about pools. The average citizen is not an authority on the subject and will be the first to admit it. West Siders will vote for a West Side pool and East Siders for one in their area. That can be expected to serve as the measure of their opinion.

Not only have Warren citizens on at least two occasions indicated that they wanted a pool, but civic groups also have joined together in an expression of support for such a project and often have indicated their impatience with the lack of action.

A committee was appointed and in turn a site committee was named. This was an overlarge group that too often got off on tangents. We haven't heard an official report from this committee concerning a recommendation on sites, despite the fact that three good men with a mite of professional help could have wound the business up in a couple of months.

But that is not the real reason why there has been no action on the pool.

Also involved in this pool problem is an overdose of prejudice. There are those who are very much opposed to anything which may be considered a brainchild of the Observer, or of anyone associated with the paper. Their hand shows plainly at frequent intervals. So ridiculous is their narrowness that one Another blockade that always arises when an effort requiring large sums of money concerns us is the unwillingness of the givers. There are some who do not feel they are obligated to help finance facilities which will serve the populace. Adversely, they also oppose the use of public funds for the same facilities.

And among those with the larger incomes there often is disagreement concerning which project should be approved, and it does not matter to some of them what the general public wants. They have their pet ideas and unless these are given priority they are reluctant to contribute.

But again this normal and human behaviour of the donors is not the current swimming pool stopper.

What is? The real reason we do not have a swimming pool, or even an effort underway to provide one, is the lack of a finance chairman. Warren is well equipped with numerous capable men and women who are eager to help head up or serve on various committees. They will assume major responsibilities in the various categories of work to be done. But no one wants to be the drive chief, the general chairman who must coordinate all this pulling and tugging, bring the alleged factions together, sell each problem child on the value of the idea, and supervise the big push for funds.

We have good men and women who could very capably do this job, but either they already are too busy with civic responsibilities and business, or they choose not to place their neck in the line of fire.

It is that simple. We lack a leader who has the time, or one who having the time is willing to accept the task.

And there are others who are willing to do the job, but feel that if they were to attempt it, prejudice would be stirred and selfish opposition would defeat the promotion.

You can number among these the Observer staff. But you can be assured that the Observer personnel will support a swimming pool chairman who provided a practical plan with the help of professional authorities.

Many have been asked, but none has accepted. That is the reason there is no pool progress.

LOOK FOR SEWAGE VIOLATORS

Our picture of a sewer which was emptying into the Allegheny river near Warren apparently awakened many to the fact that previous editorials that attempted to expose such a condition were based on actuality. It is not news to Observer readers that a picture can say so much, so easily, and so succinctly.

We received telephone calls and visits from those who are vitally interested in the enforcement of the clean streams law. We suggest that the discovery of such violations is overdue, despite the ease with which it can be accomplished.

There are several approaches. One is to use a boat in this low water period of the year and scout the banks. A more thorough method is to don some boots and walk both banks.

But even better we believe would be a visit to every camp and home on the river to determine what sewage disposal method each is using. Law enforcement is like that. Routine, systematic, and perhaps unpleasant. But it must be done if the construction of sewage plants, costing millions of dollars, is not to be wasted.

We can go on publishing pictures of such sewers as we find them along the streams within the area served by this paper. But is it necessary? Would it not be just as easy for the proper authorities and officials to do the job and to enforce the law? Or, finish the sewage project?

INCENTIVE MAKES GOOD NEGRO STUDENTS

The Pennsylvania Fair Employment law has done much to improve the interest taken by negro students in their studies. Where they have been encouraged to ignore the negative attitude of their parents, whose lives were affected by discrimination their marks have climbed amazingly.

In Johnstown efforts were made to insure that there were jobs awaiting specially trained students. As a result the marks went zooming into the A and B categories.

For example, in 1956, the first year after the law went into effect, the number of negro students in Johnstown high school was twenty. Of these eleven had D marks, six had C, two had B and one had A. The next year there were twelve of them with C's, and five had earned B's.

By 1958 the A group numbered five and the B's had grown to six.

By this year the entire ratio had changed. Of thirty-six students, twenty-one had B marks or better.

YOUR OWN FREE PRESS

A group has been organized which thinks it has a way by which all of us can share our free press benefits with citizens of other nations where freedom is not fully realized. This is a part of our cold war with communism.

It is proposed that you send your extra magazines and newspapers to other countries, and addresses are given which you can use. Labels also are provided to facilitate shipping.

Name of the group is Magazines for Friendship Inc. It suggests you choose only the good magazines in order to provide a true picture of American life. Pulp or comic magazines are not recommended. And mutilated issues are not good messengers. Avoid magazines that give distorted pictures of our way of life.

This may be more of an order than most of us can fill, but we see little harm in a typical cross-section of American publications. You can obtain details from Magazines for Friendship Inc., Occidental College, Los Angeles 41, California. Or send your magazines there and they will take care of delivery.

VETERANS SCHOOL ENDS

The ravages of war that far exceed our mental picture can be found in the announcement that a training program for disabled war veterans was terminated on July 25. During its seventeen years the rehabilitation act helped two-thirds of a million disabled veterans to gain financial independence doubling their average pay and providing them with a lift that is not measurable.

Thirty-five per cent of them aimed for professional or managerial occupations, and thirty-eight per cent trained for skilled trade and industrial occupations.

Ninety-five per cent were employed and ninety-nine per cent said they liked their chosen work.

Goldwater Cuts Scabs The Writers

By Inez Robb

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater (R., Ariz.) is a nice gentleman who unfortunately was born a hundred years too late. He is the beau ideal of those who are convinced that only a Goldwater-Byrd (Sen. Harry F., D., Va.) can save the nation from the total rack and ruin of the 20th Century.

Some wit, I wish I knew his name, once said that the DAR meets annually to repeal the 20th Century. I think the girls might get a little extra mileage from their program if they made the Arizona Senator an honorary member.

However, what alarms me about Senator Goldwater is not his political philosophy -- live and let fly, is my motto -- but what he is doing to the professional political columnists in my bailiwick.

The Senator recently entered the pundit field with a column entitled, "Where Do You Stand, Sir?" Apparently Senator Goldwater has peered into the past so intently he is unaware that women also stand, read and have even got the vote.

Now when I attended the Republican national convention in Chicago, I had a brief encounter with the Senator. He is a pleasant man with rather thin, sharp features, topped by a high forehead and iron-gray hair.

After a press conference, in which he found the Rockefeller family no whit better than the Kennedy clan and thus dismissed the former from the Grand Old Party, I went up to speak with him. I wanted to know, as one columnist to another, how he likes his new sideline.

"I write three a week," he said and added, "Say, it's a helluva job!"

That was scarcely stop-press news to me. So I went on to the next topic and asked the Senator how many papers carry his column. "Forty-seven," he said with understandable pride. "The money I make out of them I donate to the Community Hospital in Prescott, Ariz."

"Since you mention money, Senator," I said, "how much do you make out of the column per week?"

"One hundred and twenty-five dollars," he replied, after consulting an aide.

"Senator!" I cried in alarm. "You wuz robbed! Are you trying to ruin the business for the rest of us?"

Why, that column is a giveaway, a dead giveaway, I said indignantly to myself when I regained consciousness. Less than $2.65 per paper per week! Why, it's insane, it's treason, it's scabbing! It's back to 1860!

Oh, it's dandy for Senator Goldwater personally to give away a column, if he wants to, since he is a merchant prince with diversified holdings in Arizona. But what about the professions who don't have a department store to back them up, and who devote a lifetime to gaining a livelihood and recognition in the newspaper business?

Only a few days ago, Senator Goldwater was complaining vociferously that labor legislation advocated by the Democratic party was nothing more or less than payola for the labor unions. Now I wonder what kind of payola Senator Goldwater thinks his column constitutes when it is to all intents and purposes a throw-away sheet for papers that run it?

If the Senator from Arizona believes his column can stand the test of the market place, a philosophy he is always preaching, let him fairly price it to compete with such professionals as Roscoe Drummond, James Reston, Doris Fleeson, Esther Tuft, Walter Lippmann, et al, or I'll be glad to help them picket.

Matter of Fact . . .

A CHINESE-RUSSIAN BREAK?

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON.

According to persistent reports from Moscow, the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist Party has been circulating a highly explosive special letter on Russian-Chinese relations to all party organizations, both at home and abroad.

The reports, though not absolutely confirmed, are regarded as reliable. One of them compares the Central Committee's new encyclical to the famous letter of the Central Committee, passing on the news of Nikita S. Khrushchev's secret speech denouncing Josef Stalin.

Most, though not all, of the reports agree that the new encyclical was sent as a result of the Bucharest meeting, which aired the bitter though somewhat mysterious Sino-Soviet ideological dispute about the possibilities of peaceful co-existence. If this is correct, the circular must have been approved by the meeting of the Soviet Central Committee just subsequent to the meeting in Bucharest.

On this assumption, the sending of the circular was not a recent event. Yet the mere news of its existence has caused a perceptible increase in expert speculation about an eventual open rupture between Peking and Moscow.

In the words of one expert, "the volcano has been rumbling horribly for some months." The news of the circular letter from the Soviet Central Committee is like the sudden sight of smoke belching from the crater. In the circumstances, the possibility of an actual eruption really has to be thought about.

The volcano's rumblings, it must be added, have been distinctly more ominous than has yet been realized by all but a few people here. Consider the all but incredible, hitherto unpublicized exchange that took place on Aug. 13 between the official "Izvestia" in Moscow and the equally official "People's Daily" in Peking.

"Not much wisdom is needed," "Izvestia" trumpeted, "to assemble and sometimes distort quotations and to repeat over and over again that imperialist wars are inevitable until socialism triumphs . . . Such people . . . Lenin called 'leftist' phrase-mongers. Lenin ridiculed their theories of 'prohibiting' the Soviet peaceful relations with capitalist countries and 'stepping up' revolutions.

"Therefore, for those who wish to (replace) the developing, living teachers of Marxism-Leninism with a dead dogma, it is a blasphemy to refer to Lenin."

Like the blast from "Izvestia," the counter-blast of the "People's Daily" is full of words and phrases in unexplained quotation marks. These words and phrases should probably be interpreted as actual quotations from the Soviet Central Committee circular. If so, the Soviets must have been very sharp indeed, as can be seen from the following "People's Daily" passage: "As for the modern revisionists and their followers who have gone so far as to take their cue from the U. S. imperialists in vociferously affirming the slander that China is 'belligerent,' that it 'wants war,' that it 'does not want peaceful co-existence,' (but) attempts to 'push forward the world revolution by means of war' -- all this amounts to nothing else than throwing themselves into the position of apologists for imperialism . . .

"The Chinese people hold all this blasphemous talk in contempt!" Each side, then, has openly called the other "blasphemous." It is now pretty well established, moreover, that the Soviets at least ordered a symbolic withdrawal of Russian technicians from China some time before this brisk exchange of charges of blasphemy.

The evidence on this point is now so strong that the burden of proof plainly lies on the minority of experts who still hold that no technicians were withdrawn. At least two Western embassies in Peking have sent unqualified reports of organized departures of large groups of Soviet technical personnel. One such report, rated as entirely reliable by the sender, spoke of a whole trainload of 200 to 300 Russian technicians and their families. This was an extraordinary personnel movement, quite different from the ordinary, piecemeal movement that would be produced by the completion of a project.

There have been other strange signs, too. One such, exclusively reported in the "New York Herald Tribune," was the suppression in the Soviet Union of the two Sino-Soviet magazines, "Friendship" and "China." Another sign, not previously disclosed, was the non-appearance of the Chinese delegation at the important Congress of Orientalists which began in Moscow about ten days ago.

Such are the collected signs. Each man may read them as he chooses. (c) 1960 New York Herald Tribune Inc.

NOT SO HORRIBLE

In this day of easy transportation when the far points of the nation have moved closer and the sun cannot escape us during the cold months, if we have time to travel, there seems to be more regret over the end of summer days than once was the case. On all sides we hear people mourning the fact that August is rapidly running away and fall is just ahead.

Those who hail from the age when golf clubs came out of the attic on Memorial Day and were stuffed back into the upper story after Labor Day can't adjust themselves to the new way of life. This is not a matter of age, but perhaps one of moldy tradition.

The newer golfers in our expanding enjoyment of recreation are not aware of any bounds and are apt to be out there on any clear day, be it March or November, clobbering the little white thing and having an enjoyable time. Which emphasizes the fact that our falls consist of many beautiful days that have been wasted in the past by those who climb behind their walls as soon as September appears on the calendar.

What applies to golf also obtains in other fields of pleasure, and possibly accounts for the thinner attendance at football games these days. Television, of course, has taken its toll, but our populace has evolved into one which likes to do things rather than watch them. This, we suggest, is a healthy development that should be encouraged.

Typical of the thinking in some ancient quarters is the remark made at a Sport Boosters meeting a few years ago. A spokesman said he couldn't get enthused about swimming because it was for young people. Since when? This is the kind of thinking which has become passe, and it is good to see families enjoying active sports as a group, with less limitation by thoughts of their own years and by the days on the calendar.

We believe that television, even as radio, will lose much of the hold that it enjoyed during its honeymoon. The novelty in the initial stage is so great that people watch any kind of program with a mixture of amazement and intent interest. They become more select and demand greater quality of picture and program.

The third stage, which may be rapidly approaching in this area, is that in which we enjoy television only for the best it has to offer, including the special attractions and the big events that we would otherwise never see. There always will be those who will have a radio or a television set blaring by the hour, but the percentage of those who have an interest in nothing other than the noise and glare in their living room gradually is being greatly reduced.

To be without television in this age is to deny yourself and your family one of the greatest media of communication man ever has developed. Using it wisely can advance our civilization in many ways.

But we mention this only as it relates to our current heartache, the approaching end of summer. If you will accept a few bad days as a part of the bargain you have over two months of wonderful weather facing you, weather that is not so hot that it is uncomfortable for those who want to play in the sun, and a season which offers a range of pleasure far exceeding that of any comparable period in the year.

You can play golf, tennis, go on picnics, have corn roasts, hike, hunt, practice archery, fish (and the best), see football in the flesh or on the screen, watch the world series and enjoy the excitement of the baseball season's finish, take the most colorful pictures of the year, enjoy beautiful drives, take to the stream by boat in a breathtaking setting, and on into the list of participation pleasures.

The gloom-birds tend to upset this optimistic spirit. Give them one day of rain, sleet, or cold, and they say, "That's it!", put away their equipment and fold up for the winter like an overanxious bear. Their friends are discouraged and assuming that companionship is lost for the rest of the fair months, also stuff away their gear and assume a posterior position.

The truth of it is we suspect many of these doleful ones of being a mite lazy. They were the first ones to give up active sports when they got past twenty-one because they said they were getting old. Actually they preferred beer to solid belly muscles.

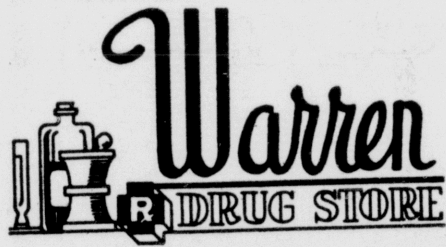

Look at it this way. You have been offered two beautiful months of relief from intense heat, damp spring weather, or freezing winter. Use it! They often are the best days of the year for most anything you choose to do.

TELEVISION & RADIO

By John Crosby

DECLINE AND FALL OF PRACTICALLY EVERYTHING

"Time" magazine has a very cute and astringent article in its book section this week about what it calls non-books, written by non-authors for non-people. This little burst of indignation is long overdue.

While becoming increasingly restive about the debauchery of taste in the television dodge, I cannot help but be aware that television is not alone in the field of being lousy. For sheer incompetence, the publishing business has been matching television stride for stride for a good many years. Year-in year-out, the best seller list is as fine a collection of utter tripe as can be found on television. We have some very bad writing on TV. But certainly nothing any worse than that in "Advice and Consent." That book has been at the head or near the head of the best seller list for months and it reads like a bad first draft of a bad first novel by a man who shouldn't have attempted literature in the first place. ***

"Time's" piece is not directed at slipshod novels like "Advice and Consent" so much as at the real non-books such as those by Art Linkletter, which have hardly any business existing between hard covers. Perhaps the most conspicuous example of a non-author is Rona Jaffe, who was more or less invented by Jerry Wald and the late Jack Goodman. Her book, "The Best of Everything," was the brainstorm of Goodman and Wald, who were already planning the movie before the book had been written or even before an author had been found to write it.

My late dear friend Vincent L. Simon, former president of Simon and Shuster, was the first man to sell a pocketbook in this country. Vic took books out of the book stores, where reading was almost deliberately confined to members of a small exclusive club, and put books in the supermarkets and the drugstores. This opened reading to millions of people who wouldn't ordinarily buy books. It was a great push forward for people and for publishing.

But now books, it seems to me, are ALL aimed at and written for the drugstore trade. They're not written to be read; they're written to distract. In addition, there is an enormous and profitable traffic in Christmas books that are not meant to be opened at all. These are designed, not for reading, but simply for purchase. Books with titles like "The Civil War in Pictures," with 7,000 color prints, weighing twelve pounds, and costing $12.50. The man who buys it has not intention of reading it, only of giving it away. The man who gets it, never opens it, but puts it directly on the end table where it looks mighty handsome. Actually, that's what it was designed for -- just to lie there, looking handsome and giving a little fillip to the owner's culture status.

As for the books that have moved into the drugstore, they are merchandised exactly like toothpaste -- the advertising having no relation whatsoever with the contents. This is an immoral way to sell even toothpaste, but the felony is compounded when books are sold that way. For the first has to do with a substance that is put into the mouth only temporarily; the second has to do with what goes into the mind and, while, God knows, most of it doesn't stay there long, it's difficult to get the trash out of the mind altogether.

This is an age of advertising whose ultimate triumph is a man named Levine (whose first name I can't remember, and who isn't really worth the trouble of looking up). Levine is the man who unleashed on the world a picture named "Hercules Unchained." Levine openly boasts that he is more concerned with the advertising of his pictures than the making of them. The picture is so awful that my children came home from it, feeling they'd been robbed of their allowance. This is the first time I've ever denounced a picture without seeing it. But then, if Mr. Levine insists on turning out pictures aimed at twelve-year-old mentality, he mustn't expect and doesn't deserve first hand criticism. After reading some of Mr. Levine's cold-blooded cynicism about the nature of movie audiences and how to woo pennies from children, I feel no hesitation about printing my children's opinion of his lousy picture.

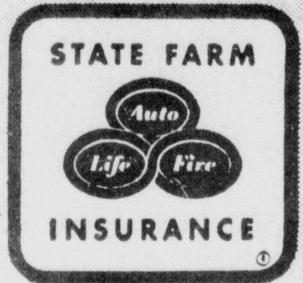

Rotten TV shows, rotten books, rotten movies -- is that as far as it goes? No, it isn't. The decline in competence, the decline in standards of performance seem to touch every line of American endeavor. New cars on the roads are so badly put together the door handles start to fall off in the second week. New apartment buildings in New York are so poorly made you can hear the toilets flush on the next floor. There is no pride anywhere in doing things well. Just get it done, get paid, leave town before the suckers catch on.

We're all acting like snake oil salesman. The trouble is everyone is selling everyone else his brand of snake oil. There's no clear delineation anymore between the con men and the suckers. We're all suckers. And we're all con men.

RADIO SOAP OPERAS GO DOWN THE DRAIN

The Columbia Broadcasting System's radio network is cleaning house with soap operas and many other radio dramas doomed to be washed down the drain. They will be replaced by more news and information programs, according to CBS.

Included in the obituary column are "Amos n' Andy Music Hall," a network favorite for more than thirty years; daytime serials such as "Ma Perkins," "Young Dr. Malone," and "The Second Mrs. Burton."

The change will become effective on Nov. 28 and although strong listener reaction is expected the network intends to proceed with its program to increase news and informational type programs by more than 50 per cent. Plans call for a 10-minute news program on the hour with affiliate stations adding another 5 minutes of local news. The network also will present 5-minute information shows on the half hour.

PRESS TO THE AID OF TELEVISION

H. V. Kaltenborn, often acclaimed the "dean of commentators," and a number of other reporters, news analysts and columnists have joined forces to prepare a package of editorials for radio and television broadcast. The format is a three-minute daily editorial on national and international affairs, to be air mailed to radio stations and taped for TV.

Sixteen stations have thus far subscribed to the "editorial package" and stations are free to use the material to conform to their own particular needs.

It has also been noted that a number of alert journalists are pepping up the news coverage on television, as witness the Huntley-Brinkley team with the special reporting "touch" and the immediate treatment of the Echo story. As any good reported or newspaper writer knows, the key is that magic element of anticipation, not merely knowing what is happening but knowing what is going to happen and being prepared for it.

THE NEW YORK LEDGER, an hour-long series of suspenseful stories about believable people caught in the drama and excitement of contemporary life in the big city, will be produced by NBC-TV for presentation in prime evening time during the 1961-62 season. A mythical New York daily newspaper, The Ledger, will be the background. Publicity releases say this is much more than the routine "just another newspaper-type story."

35 YEARS OF BROADCASTING, a panoramic history of network radio and television, will be one of the giant shows of the 1961-62 season being produced by NBC-TV. The show, two hours or longer in length, will trace network broadcasting from its start in 1926 to the present

Scott Attack On Kennedy Unfounded

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON. -- In the political quarrel Senator Hugh Scott stirred up over whether the Kennedy Foundation or the State Department should get credit for initiating an air lift of African students to this country the only loser seems likely to be the whole program of student exchange. Unless, it may be added, it is Senator Scott himself.

There is much to be proud of in the student exchange program, which has grown in recent years to truly remarkable proportions. The Institute of International Education in its report for 1960 said that 48,486 foreign students were in this country. This compares with the 15,000 reported last year by the Soviet Union as studying in Soviet educational institutions.

One of the remarkable things about the American program is the wide range of areas from which they come. The largest number, 17,175, continued as in the past years to come from the Far East. The second largest total, 9,428, was made up of students from Latin America. They attended universities and colleges in every state in the Union.

What is particularly impressive is the percentage -- 27.7 -- supported through scholarships provided by private organizations. Another 38.3 percent are studying on their own funds, and U.S. Government grants cover only 5.5 percent of the total foreign student population.

This last relates directly to the Scott charge that the Kennedy Foundation at the instigation of Senator Kennedy, the Democratic candidate, sought to "outbid" the State Department in bringing 250 African students to this country. As the report of the Institute of International Education makes abundantly clear, the pressure of students from all over the free world to come to America to study is so great that there can be no question of public or private sources of support outbidding each other.

What is needed is a serious appraisal of the program and the way it is working, with steps taken at once to correct some of the obvious defects. Both public and private money can be put to invaluable use with no question at all of competition.

The number of students coming here, many of them on their own, has multiplied so rapidly that in many instances they are lost in the shuffle. As Delia and Ferdinand Kuhn, specialists in this field, point out in The New York Times, too often the foreign student has no supervision or assistance in finding his way through our great impersonal universities. Often his English is deficient. The result is that the effort and money he expends are not merely wasted but he becomes resentful and bewildered, and he may go home with a strong anti-American bias.

The picture that Scott gave of the State Department and the Kennedy Foundation fighting to see who could bring in the African students as a political coup is an illustration of how the program can be distorted. One fortunate consequence of what has been otherwise an unhappy episode is that at the request of the Kennedy Foundation a team of experts is going to Kenya to make sure that the students who come here are qualified to benefit from education in this country. However fine the motives behind a mass movement of young Africans, more harm than good is done if they cannot take advantage of what the diverse American system has to offer.

The foreign student coming to this country is given almost complete freedom. This is in marked contrast, as young Westerners going to Moscow have discovered, with the Soviet approach. There the student's life is regimented and he is likely to discover that fraternizing with his fellow Soviet students comes under the head of espionage.

Exciting things are happening in this field in which the competition between East and West should serve in the long run to bring widespread gains to the underdeveloped countries. The Senate has passed and a Senate-House conference is now considering Senator Lyndon Johnson's bill to create an East-West institute in Hawaii, bringing students and instructors from both sides of the Pacific.

As evidence of the interest, while the State Department asked for an appropriation of $8,300,000, the Senate Appropriations Committee recommended and the Senate approved $10,000,000 a year for three years. In the State Department proposal the institute could take only 200 students. At the end of three years, as approved by the Senate, it will have a capacity of 2,000.

Money alone will not bring light and learning to the students coming here from every corner of the globe. There is a great demand growing greater every year for truly trained teachers at every level for our own rapidly expanding school population. It is a first step to recognize the dimension of the need at home and abroad.

NEW BOOKLET DESCRIBES MULTIPLE FOREST USE

If you like to eat beefsteaks, read newspapers, or hike wilderness trails, you'll be one of the millions of Americans benefiting from the Forest Service's Operation Multiple Use Program described in a new publication issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A 16 - page booklet describes the accelerated program to develop all National Forest renewable resources to meet the increasing demands of an expanding population during the next 10 to 15 years. The program carries out the charge of Public Law 86-517 passed this year, directing that the National Forests be administered for multiple use and sustained yield.

The Forest Service describes the program as a race against time. "We are trying to make the potential yields of water, recreation, timber, forage, and wildlife from these public forests keep up with a growing populations growing needs," said Richard E. McArdle, Chief of the Forest Service.

Almost everyone will receive direct benefits from this program because almost everyone uses some National Forest resource or product, the booklet points out.

For instance, your beefsteak or lamb chop may have summered on a National Forest range. National Forest water may have irrigated the farms that supply you with food. The pad on which you write and the pencil you use may have been produced from National Forest trees. Perhaps your outdoor recreation takes you to National Forest trout streams, campgrounds, onto wilderness trails or over scenic automobile roads. The program will provide greater use of National Forests which means fuller enjoyment, more jobs and expanding wealth.

The booklet outlines specific National Forest projects needed to carry out the program. Among them are: increasing the water yield; harvesting more timber; stepping up tree planting; improving the timber stands; building up the range; improving wildlife habitat; improving fishing on 7,000 miles of streams and 56,000 acres of lakes; more than tripling the camp and picnic facilities; construction of roads and trails; and better protection of the National Forests against insects, disease, fire, weather, and harmful rodents.

Operation Multiple Use also provides for intensified research to develop more efficient, effective, and economical methods of managing and utilizing the forest resources. Among other research projects being conducted are studies of forest fire behavior, new techniques for eliminating runaway fires responsible for 90 percent of forest fire losses, and forest genetics.

A copy of "Operation Multiple Use -- Program for the National Forest" booklet may be obtained from the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., or from the Forest Supervisor, Allegheny National Forest, P. O. Box 208, Warren, Pennsylvania.

HOW FISH DAMAGES ARE ESTIMATED

In reply to the many inquiries asking how damages are evaluated when fish are killed by pollution, the Pennsylvania Fish Commission today issued the following statement:

When a pollution is reported, the state fish warden who is closest to the scene of the pollution is immediately notified. The warden immediately contacts the Regional Engineer of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, supplying all information in his possession such as nature of the pollution, location, area affected, when discovered, presence of dead or dying fish and the names and addresses of persons making the report. The warden then proceeds to the scene of the pollution where he begins counting dead and dying fish. Upon the arrival of the Regional Engineer, he turns the investigation over to him, continuing to render all possible assistance in the collection of water samples and pinpointing the source of the pollution.

The count of dead fish, species and size, is then turned over to the Fish Commission where it is checked against price lists charged for live fish of the same species and size by commercial hatcheries. On this basis a fair evaluation of the damage is computed and action is started for recovery either by voluntary contribution or by the more expensive way, by prosecution.

During 1959 only six prosecutions were made, while more than $33,000 was collected by voluntary contributions.

YOUR FOREST RANGER

By Larry Stotz

The strength of our Nation rests in the development and maintenance of strong family ties. A family that worships together and plays together is stronger than one in which each member goes his separate way.

National forest recreation is mostly of the family type. Visit any of the campground or picnic areas on the Allegheny National Forest and you will find whole families, from the youngest in his play pen to grandparents in camp chairs under the trees, enjoying the simple pleasures of outdoor living.

Parents find themselves closer to their children as they hike together down a woodland trail or sit around a campfire at night. Even the family dog becomes an eager participant in the adventure of outdoor group living.

Less than one percent of the land area in the national forest system is devoted to intensive recreational use such as campgrounds, picnic areas, organization camps, and summer home sites. The recreationist who visits a public campground or picnic area, however, is not confined to its boundaries but can drive over scenic woodland roads that are uncluttered by billboards or other commercial use. He can hike over forest trails, or walk the edge of a trout stream. As he pursues these travel routes he may be wholly unaware that nearby timber is being harvested, or that other uses are being made of the land.

Scenic strips along forest highways, waterways, and around recreation areas protect the recreation resources. In some places, though, specialized logging techniques permit the removal of dangerous, diseased, or insect-ridden trees inside recreational areas and roadside strips to the advantage of the traveling public and those using the recreational areas.

A look at the other uses of the National Forests beyond the protective strips can enlarge the horizons of family groups who vacation there. On western national forests recreationists can see firsthand the drama and color of the livestock industry as they ride horseback over forest ranges.

The harvesting of ripe timber -- from the moment the power saw tumbles a forest giant to the ground to the time when the logs are loaded on the big trucks -- is a fascinating operation to watch.

The wildlife of the forest is a big attraction to family groups vacationing on the National Forests or just passing through. It is estimated that over 3-1/3 million big-game animals spend at least a part of the year on these public lands. This is about 35 percent of the Nation's total big-game population, but it includes more than 85 percent of the country's elk, mountain goats, moose, and grizzly bear, and nearly 60 percent of its mule deer and black bear. These wild animals offer unsurpassed opportunities for the vacationist to photograph them in their native habitat.

The National Forest are used for many purposes and frequently many uses occur in the same area. To most people there is a fascination in seeing multiple-use management in action.

CASSIUS II

ROME -- Cassius Marcellus Clay fetched the heavy bag a right-hand smash that made the big leather sausage leap and shudder. The bag was hung from a pipe protruding from the wall of the training room beneath Stadio Flaminio, and for the second successive day Cassius's clouts shook the pipe violently, bringing plaster rattling to the floor. Outraged by this inadvertent vandalism in Rome's glossy new Olympic plant, a minor official scampered across the room gesticulating and squealing. This wanton destruction must cease, he seemed to be saying, or President Giovanni Gronchi himself would have Cassius carted off to the Colosseo and fed to the lions.

Half sheepish and half amused, Cassius spread his gloved paws in a little gesture of apology. With only thirty-two knockouts in 138 fights, he doesn't regard himself as a destructive puncher, even though hopeful coaches of the American team are predicting that he'll show Olympic boxing fans more class than Rome has witnessed since another Cassius and his cut-throat colleagues, Brutus and Casca, took J. Caesar out in the first round. With boxing scheduled to lead off the Olympic agenda -- it begins

Thursday night after the opening ceremonies -- Cassius Marcellus Clay, an eighteen-year-old Louisville schoolboy who has been fighting with gloves since he was thirteen, occupies the same position of eminence on this team that Floyd Patterson held in 1952.

HUNGRY FOR A MEDAL

"Do you think you Cassius has a lean and hungry look?" a guy asked, eyeing 179 trimly packaged pounds symmetrically disposed on a chassis measuring six-feet-two. (Clay will box as a light-heavyweight, at 178 pounds.)

"What's more important," another said, "do you think too much, Cassius?"

"I think about these games," the young man said, "and getting home."

"Weren't you leaner and hungrier the night you flattened Garry Jawish in Madison Square Garden?" This was in the Golden Gloves finals in March. Cassius, at 175, gave away sixty-one pounds and dismantled Jawish in the third round.

"I was scared that night," Cassius said.

"The boy has won 128 bouts and lost seven. But six of those he lost," said Maj. Bob Surkin, "were when he was thirteen and fourteen years old." Maj. Surkin, an accredited Olympic referee, was assigned to the team by the Army because the fighters trained for three weeks at Fort Dix, N. J., under Army auspices. He has referred seventeen of Clay's matches. ***

MUSCOVITE CHUMS

"I lost last year," the kid said quickly. "In the tryouts for the Pan-American games, to Amos Johnson, a southpaw. Do southpaws bother other fellows?"

He asked the question wistfully, as if seeking reassurance. All fighters, he was told, believe deeply that southpaws should be drowned at birth. This seemed to cheer him. In forty-two bouts since Johnson, he has won forty-two.

"Cassius has had Rome on his mind," Maj. Surkin said. "We took a day off from Dix and went down to Atlantic City. Cassius stood on the boardwalk. 'Hey,' he said, 'what do you suppose is across that lake?'"

First thing they did on this side of the lake was pick out a site for roadwork, a grassy plain just outside Villaggio Olimpico. Out early the next morning, they found the Russian boxers there ahead of them, so even while Francis Powers was on trial for espionage in Moscow, Russian and American fighters have been running companionably together in Rome, though they have not sparred together.

"Haven't been able to talk to 'em," Cassius said, "but I show 'em my camera and they pose and then I pull one out and he takes my picture with the others. Here." He displayed a folder of snapshots -- Cassius with the Russians, Cassius with Pakistani fighters, Cassius with German fighters. "That'll be something to show back home, won't it?" he said, boyishly pleased. ***

THE DEMON MATH

Cassius is fit and able and earnest, but he's in a rough division that includes Guennady Chatkov, a wallowing Muscovite who won the middleweight title in 1956. After winning in five of the ten weight classes in 1952, the United States took only two gold medals in Melbourne where we had no bantam or featherweight because, after flying halfway around the world to fight, our representatives in those divisions carelessly got overweight and were disqualified. It was a disgrace reflecting on the coaching, training, and discipline as well as the malingers.

This time, coach Jules Menendez says firmly, we will lose no bouts on the scale.

There's a scale prominently placed in the American quarters in Olympic Village, where nobody could miss it. Trouble is, it shows weight in kilograms and you must multiply by 2.2 to convert the figure to pounds. The boys are watching their calorie consumption conscientiously, but could drop the duketo mathematics.

SODA SPANKS BETTS IN SHAUGHNESSYS

Soda Mineral won the opening game of the City Softball League's Shaughnessy playoff with a 3 to 0 decision over the Black Knights of Betts Machine. Bud Speicher, the winning hurler, thus has pitched forty-two innings of shutout ball in his last forty-four innings of mound work. John Berdine suffered the loss.

S-M took a 1 to 0 lead in the third when Don McKelvy walked, and scored when Dick Koebly blasted a two-base hit to centerfield with two men out.

McKelvy also came across the plate with Soda's second run in the fifth frame when he once more led off the inning with a free pass, and advanced to second on an infield error. Koebly again delivered a clutch single to center to bring McKelvy home.

In the sixth stanza Bill Massa led off with a walk, advanced to second on a wild pitch and scored when Don Baldensperger smashed a bingle through the left side of the Betts infield defense. "Baldy" and Dick White, who was on base after being hit by a pitch, were left stranded when Berdine retired McKelvy on a pop-up and Ron Harrison on a grounder.

Wink Rickerson and John Berdine did the only sticking for Betts as they collected two hits apiece, the only safe blows off Speicher. The Soda hurler fanned ten men and yielded three passes, while Berdine struck out one and issued the three walks, all which figured in the Soda scoring.

CITY HOT STOVE NEWS

All managers and ward chairmen are asked by Hot Stove Equipment Manager, Fred Rydholm, to notify the lads that participated in the summer leagues that uniforms and equipment must be turned in as soon as possible.

The City Hot Stove League will next meet at the YMCA on Wednesday evening, Sept. 7, at 8 p. m., at which time officers for the coming 1961 season will be elected. At the league's meeting this Wednesday it was approved that umpires would be paid for working the games next year.

The bantam league playoff series between Dairy Queen of the east and Thomas Coupling of the west will commence next Monday evening on the Thomas Coupling field. The second game of the championship series will be staged on Lacy field Tuesday evening, and if a third game is needed, it will be played on neutral Memorial field Wednesday.

SEES BURDETTE NO-HITTER

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert J. Anthony, 110 Market st., Warren, are mighty happy that they arrived in Milwaukee one day earlier than they expected on their two-week vacation. On the night of Aug. 18 they were amongst the crowd at County Stadium in Milwaukee that witnessed Lew Burdette's no-hitter and near-perfect game.

Gil told us Thursday evening that the Braves' ace "hung" a curve ball inside that struck Cincy batter, Tony Gonzales, ruining his perfect game. The only Redleg to reach first base was then erased on the front end of a double play.

POWER HITTING GIVES SODA SECOND CONQUEST

An eleven-hit barrage by Soda Mineral off Betts Machine hurler John Berdine plus tireless pitching by Bud Speicher gave the distributors a 9 to 0 win over the City champs in the second game of the playoff for the Shaughnessy title. One of the largest crowds to attend a softball game in a number of years was on hand to witness the onslaught, including a bus load of patients from the Warren State Hospital.

Speicher was in usual form again Thursday evening as he limited the Black Knights of Ange Regina to a pair of harmless singles. The tall Soda ace walked only one man and fanned eleven in the seven-inning stint.

aboard started the evening's hitting spree for the victors. They added one more in the second on Ron Harrison's triple which was followed by a two-base knock off the bat of Dick Koebly.

Soda added a brace of tallies in the third and went scoreless in the fourth and fifth frames before they exploded for four big runs in the last of the sixth. Dick White and Don Baldensperger led off the fruitful inning with singles, and "Hugo" McKelvy cleared the sacks with a triple to left-center. Jim Rose then rocketed his second homer of the year over the center-field fence to bring in two more runs to complete the scoring.

The third game of the series, which now stands in Soda's favor, two games to none, will be played Monday at the West Side field at 6:15 p.m. All proceeds of the donations taken at the games will go to the family of Dave Wilbur, who was killed in an auto accident on August 9.

NORTHERN AREA KNIGHTS BEGIN PRACTICE SEPT. 1

The 1959 pride of Warren County's football story, the Northern Area Knights gridiron eleven, which went undefeated in league and independent play, will begin a huge rebuilding task next Thursday, Sept. 1 when the first practice session is scheduled. Head coach Norge Luvison has two returning lettermen from the '59 powerhouse, Al Ludwick and Denny Owens, around which he must center his reconstruction efforts.

Assisting Luvison this season will be Fred Bauer as assistant coach, and John Lassinger and John Neese as the junior high school mentors. The staff will begin working with the squad next Thursday after Dr. George Bailey completes his physical examinations of the boys on Wednesday, Aug. 31.

The Simonsen's Insurance team grabbed second half laurels in the Industrial Golf League with a total of 71 points, one and a half points ahead of second place Carlson's Motors. The Simonsen win was aided immensely this week as the Struthers Wells team downed Carlson's, 7 to 5, to knock the Motors gang from first place.

Joey Brindis fired the week's low score, 37, and he was followed by Elmer Duchess, who carded a 38, and Joe Scalise, Ross Fisher, Bob Johnson, Bob Day, Johnny Smith, and Tink Wolfe, all who brought home 39's.

Simonsen's thus gets the opportunity to meet first-half winner, Penn Glade Hotel, in the championship meet, which is to be staged Sunday, September 11 at 9 a. m. on the Kinzua course. Members of the PGH team are Walt Confer, captain, Johnny Smith, Keith Culbertson, Elmer Duchess, Tink Wolfe, and John Snyder. George Eberhardt is the captain of the Simonsen team which includes Bill Simonsen, Jr., Bob Johnson, Archie Brobst, Bob Day, and Bill Simonsen, Sr.

The scores in the final week of play were: Sylvania One 7, Warren Observer 3; New Yorkers 8, Sylvania Two 4; Solar 9, National Forge 3; Simonsen's 7-1/2, Econowash 4-1/2; Belz-Larson 5, Blueberry 5; Penn Glade Hotel 8, Riverside Lanes 4; Erickson's 5, Keystone Powerfuel 5; Struthers Wells 7, Carlson Motors 5; and Cunningham's 7-1/2, Loranger's 2-1/2.

Winners of the first five places in the second half were Simonsen's 71, Carlson's 69-1/2, Penn Glade Hotel 66-1/2, Econowash 64-1/2, and New Yorkers 58-1/2.

Final season's standings for the first five places, including total points scored, are: Penn Glade Hotel 128, Simonsen's 124, Carlson's 114-1/2, Econowash 113-1/2, and New Yorkers 110-1/2.

The Industrial Golf League will close the season this Sunday with a three-flight tournament open to all those who participated in the league this season. Tee-off time for the tourney is 8 a. m. Prizes will be awarded for low net and low gross scores, and special prizes will be awarded for the longest drive on number six and closest to the pin on number nine.

Refreshments will be free during the course of the day, and a chicken dinner will be served to the participants from 3 to 4 p. m. A blind bogey match and a one-club event will be held following completion of the regular tournament.

'60 Playground Attendance Reaches All-Time High

Warren borough's playgrounds closed Wednesday afternoon for the 1960 season, and Recreation Director Fred Bell announced that attendance this year reached an all time high as 77,038 youngsters were counted during the ten-week season. The previous high mark was registered in 1957 when 75,170 were counted, slightly more than the 73,010 counted last year.

Total boy-girl registration during 1960 was 1981 at the seven city play areas. Attendance was taken three times daily with many of those counted at all the marking periods.

Parents of youngsters are cautioned to warn children that the playground equipment is still intact, but that there will be no authorized supervision of the areas. Playground equipment such as slides, teeters, and swings will remain on the areas until later this year.

The Playground Supervisors met the Playground All-Stars in a softball contest at Memorial field Wednesday evening, and as might have been expected the Supervisors emerged victorious, 11 to 7. Faith Mong supplied the big bat for the victors as she slapped a round-tripper with two mates aboard in the second inning.
